Environmental Law

Call for papers: JPPEL Special Issue

We invite you to submit your research to the Constructions of Property: Encompassing People, Power and Place special issue from the Journal of Property Planning and Environmental Law \(JPPEL\)

This special issue welcomes submissions which address any context in which the law seeks to define, regulate, limit or conceptualise relationships to property, and/or which explore the concepts of space, place and inclusivity. Interdisciplinary papers are particularly welcome, as are those with an international perspective.

Topics covered in this special issue include:

- The emergence of new forms of land ownership, regulation, or planning systems
- The boundaries between public and private property relationships
- Technology, design and/or environmental changes and the impact on space/place regulation
- The relationship of property to individual or collective identity
- Potential tensions between different stakeholder groups in property discourses

Interested?

Our author guidelines http://emeraldgrouppublishing.com/products/journals/author_guidelines.htm?id=ijlbe will provide you with comprehensive support throughout the submission process.

Submit your paper today! Go to <https://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/ijlbe>

Closing date for submissions is 1 April 2019.

Kind regards,
